

$5,000 IN PRIZES FOR BEST MORAL CODE

Organization Announces Novel
Way to Obtain Best System
For Use in Public Schools.

Here is a novel way to earn $5,000. You neither have to write a motion picture scenario nor count the dots in a circle. You have to evolve a prize winning "code of morals" for use in public schools.

This announcement was made today by the National Institution for Moral Instruction, an organization directed by Milton Fairchild, and having on its executive committee P. P. Haxton, United States Commissioner of Education; Dr. Willard S. Small, principal of Eastern High School; W. C. Ruediger, dean of the Teachers' College, George Washington University; and other prominent educators.

This prize offer is announced at the suggestion of a prominent business man, it is stated, "who has come to the conclusion that the fundamental work to be done for the nation is to provide for a thorough character education for the youth."

Such an education, he asserts, should be undertaken "in order that a better result aimed at is the expression of opinions from all quarters about the moral ideas that should be taught American young folk. Educators throughout the United States will be asked to co-operate in furthering the competition."

The National Institution for Moral Instruction formerly had its headquarters in Baltimore, but it has moved to Washington, because of its work being done in collaboration with the United States Bureau of Education, and because it is believed the location in the Nation's Capital will give the work a wider scope.

"Redemption" To Be Sung At Church of Ascension

At the Church of the Ascension tonight Gounod's "Redemption" will be sung by the choir under the direction of A. H. Harned. The soloists will be: Soprano, Miss Caroline Lockett; contralto, Miss Jessie Masters; tenor, J. F. M. Bowie; and baritone, Norbert Brydon, of St. Paul's Church, Norfolk. Mrs. James Dickinson will be at the piano and Albert H. Harned will preside at the organ. This will be the last of the special musical services by the choir.

State G. A. R. Societies Make Plans For Camp

That the different State organizations of the Grand Army of the Republic are taking unusual interest in the encampment of the order to be held here in September is evidenced by letters telling of the numerous plans in all parts of the country for the event.

A letter was received by Col. John McKinstry today telling of the introduction of a bill in the Wisconsin legislature providing for the purchase of $250 worth of flags to be carried in the parade during the encampment.

Cultivate Idle Acres, Advice of C. J. Owens

Absolute denial of the statement credited to him in Memphis dispatches that the South would gain nothing through diversification of crops, was made today by Clarence J. Owens, managing director of the Southern Commercial Congress. Mr. Owens declared that he had said he hoped to see the day of the 20,000,000 bale cotton crop in the South, but explained that this could be attained through cultivation of idle acreage.

MRS. NINA E. ALLENDER.

Mrs. Nina E. Allender heads the District branch of the Congressional Union for Women's Suffrage, following the election and banquet yesterday at Raucher's. Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley was named vice chairman, Mrs. Randolph Keith Forrest, Secretary, and Mrs. Robert Baker, Treasurer.

Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the Industrial relations committee, and Major Pullman were the principal speakers, preceding the presentation of a suffrage playlet, by Miss Hazel MacKaye. In defense of Mother during the afternoon session Mrs. Helena Hill Wood discussed "This History of the Work for the Federal Amendment."

Major Pullman, while advocating equal suffrage, condemned attacks upon any political party because of its opposition to the equal suffrage amendment. Both he and Mr. Walsh, however, expressed the belief that nationwide woman suffrage will come within the next few years.
